Why The Trinity Must Be Central

Trinitarian Theology means putting the doctrine of the Trinity at the center of all Christian thought and all human living. This week's issue helps us see why this is so important. In the Scripture Jesus speaks to us constantly about judgment, belief, response, repentance, heaven, and hell. If we define such concepts by any means other than the Father who loves the Son in the love of the Holy Spirit (i.e. The Trinity) we will come to the wrong conclusions. John and Tim have helped us see how we define two of these ideas— judgment and response—in the light of the Trinity, and in doing so they have shown us why the Trinity must be central to everything we think about in life.
